WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, June 13th, 1904.

Editor Press:—

The present week has been a very busy one at the White House, and in the Executive departments. People who talk with the President came away impressed with the detailed information he possesses in regard to the political situation in the several states, especially New York, Indiana and Illinois. The landing of United States marines at Tangier, ostensibly to protect a foreign legation, gives satisfaction. Secy. Hay finds ample precedent for so doing. He may further find a precedent for landing marines to protect American citizens. It will be a lame conclusion of the whole matter if Mr. Perdicaris is allowed to die in captivity. All matters pertaining to the Chicago Convention are now arranged. The President will allow neither liquors nor refreshments to be sold in the convention hall. The gentlemen who are to make nominating speeches have been chosen. I has been decided to present Senator Fairbank's name to the covention for Vice President. Ex. Senator Wolcott of Colorado is the man who will set the ball rolling for Fairbanks. Mr. Isoda, Commissioner to the St. Louis Fair, has called to see the President. Being asked why physically the Japanese are so small, Mr. Isoda said it was the result of over study. It is a little remarkable that there are so few stunted men in the United States. The President has appointed Mr. D. J. Murphy, once Commissioner of Pensions, under Cleveland, to be Secretary to the Panama Canal Commission. Mr. Murphy is a Knight of Columbus and was the editor of a Catholic weekly. Today the President received for the city a statue of Dr. Benj. Rush of Revolutionary fame, which was unveiled in front of the old Naval Observatory Building. The usual program of music, and speeches was carried out. Dr. Rush was a man who went about doing good, and who held the position of physician in chief to the American army. For many years he was a professor in the University of Pennsylvania.

The once famous case of Rebecca Taylor, who was dismissed from the War Department because she wrote a newspaper article reflecting upon the policy and character of the President, has at last been settled. She claimed that she was unjustly removed, and asked for a writ of mandamus compelling reinstatement. The court of appeals of this district has now decided that regardless of the merits of the case the courts have no jurisdiction. The right of appointment carries with it the right of removal. There is no contract. Any clerk may be dismissed at any time for any cause. Civil Service simply keeps out the crowd; it doesn't protect a clerk when once an appointment has been made.

Since the verdict of "not guilty," in the Tyner-Barrett case, the Government has decided to drop the remaining indictments against H. J. Barret, nephew of the General. He was among other things accused of bribery but it was shown during the late trial, that a certain fee of $800 which he received, was paid after he left the government service.

The famous Columbian University of this city will hereafter be known as the George Washington University. This change of names rather upsets the college yell business. Besides it would be indignified to connect the name of the Father of his Country with some silly rhyme.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

JOYCE.

Mr. Edward Joyce, aged 37 years, died at the home of his brother Thomas, Rich Valley, June 16, from tuberculosis. Mr. Joyce came to Emporium five weeks ago from Wisconsin where he had long been employed as a lumberman, was taken to the home of his brother who with the assistance of his wife tenderly cared for him, till death relieved his sufferings. He was born in the province of New Brunswick, Canada, and is survived by Thomas and James, who reside in Emporium, William, of Wisconsin, and four sisters, two of whom live in Maine and two in New Brunswick. He was a man of exemplary life and died in the comfort and hope of the christian religion.

Largely attended funeral services were held at the home of his brother last Sunday afternoon at two o'clock and were conducted by his pastor, the Rev. O. S. Metzler. Appropriate music was furnished by the choir of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment was made in Newton cemetery.

A Summer Home.

A modern Southern home illustrated in The Delineator for July, commends itself not only to those who dwell in torrid zones but as well to those in Northern parts who build with the aim of lessening the discomforts of the Summer climate. In the exterior, Portland cement and rough-sawed chestnut, gray-stained, are the main factors, giving a solidity that is well calculated to resist the rays of the sun, without, however, sacrificing the artistic possibilities. Commodious high-celled rooms and greenwork within contribute to the appearance of coolness, while a quaint effect is given by the furnishings and decorations. Cozy inglenooks and interesting mantels are other attractive features of the Summer home.

To Be Remodeled.

The First National Bank building at this place will receive many interior improvements in the very near future. The present vault will be taken out and a large one erected on the southern end of the building, thereby enlarging the "workshop" and allowing larger space for the patrons.

Wrist Cut.

James Edwards, who drives Chas. Howard's milk wagon, cut his right wrist quite badly on Friday. The young man was delivering milk on Second Street, and while running with an empty bottle tripped and fell, with the above result. Drs. Smith and DeLong sewed up the wound and the young man is about his duties as usual.

Bad Fall.

John Edelman, the East Ward tailor, has been having a serious time the past three weeks, the result of a fall, in which his left shoulder was dislocated and one rib fractured. While Mr. Edelman was not performing on stilts, they nevertheless were the cause of the accident, and says he does not want any more such experience.

To Correspondents.

We must request all correspondents to eliminate all personalities from their correspondence. Give us items of news, that which will interest our readers. "Flings" are not news and only cause disturbances in the vicinity from whence the items come.

Terrible Loss of Life.

Great Steamer Takes Fire and Six Hundred Perish--Five Hundred Bodies Recovered.

NEW YORK, June 15.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of New York, tragic in its emmensity, dramatic in its episodes and deeply pathetic in the tender age of most of its victims, took place to-day in the East river, at the entrance of Long Island Sound, within a short distance of the New York shore and within sight of thousands of persons, the majority of whom were powerless to minimize the extent of the catastrophe.

By the burning to the water's edge of the General Slocum, a three decked excursion steamer, the largest in these waters, more than 600 persons, the majority of whom were women and children, were burned to death or drowned by jumping overboard, or by being thrown into the whirlpools by the lurching of the vessel, and the frantic rush of the panic-stricken passengers.

Approximately 500 bodies have been recovered and are now being tagged at the morgues of Bellevue hospital and Harlem. Divers were still busy at a late hour taking bodies from the hold of the vessel, which they say is choked with the remains of human beings, while the bodies of scores who leaped or were thrown into the river have not been recovered.

The race to North Brother Island was horribly dramatic. It was made while the flames, which had been fanned into a fury by the stong head wind, were consuming hundreds of persons, young and old. The scene was one of frightful panic, with men, women and children jumping overboard and being lashed by the channel whirlpools against the vessel's sides. Women and children were crowded together on the hurricane deck, which soon burned away and fell, and it is believed that most of those on this deck were burned.

Important School Board Session.

Emporium School Board met at City Hall last Monday evening and organized for the year. Present, Messrs. L. K. Huntington, W. H. Howard, B. Egan, R. R. McQuay, A. F. Andrews and J. P. McNarney. Mr. Huntington was elected President, J. P. McNarney, Sec'y and W. H. Howard, Treasurer, under $10,000 bond. Regular meetings fixed for first Monday evening of each month, at eight o'clock.

The tax levy for 1904 was fixed at $1.00 per capita on each male inhabitant; school, 13 mills; building, eight mills; bond, five mills, an increase of four mills over last year.

The Board decided to place a sliding partition in the High School room, dividing the same into two rooms—the High School to use one side and adjoining class room The Junior Grammar will be transferred from East Ward building, and will occupy the other portion of divided room.

Mr. Fred Julian, who has been in England for three months, is expected to land in New York on Saturday—home Sunday or Monday.

Dinner and Lunches.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will serve dinner and lunches in the basement of the new church on the Fourth of July.

Was Only a Drunk.

The residents in the neighborhood of Fourth and Walnut streets were roused from their slumbers by the cries of a man somewhere near the freight depot, last night about mid-night. An investigation proved the man to be in an intoxicated condition and imagined he was being murdered. The fellow is on deck this morning but is still in a deplorable state.

Valuable Lands.

Hon. W. C. Arnold, of DuBois, transacted business in Emporium on Monday. Mr. Arnold is recovering his health after a long spell of sickness. Mr. Arnold was here to bid off the large Hick's Run timber tract owned by John E. DuBois and valued at one and a half million dollars. The check Mr. Arnold planked down for one year's taxes, including interest and costs was only $5,200, which is too low for such valuable land, only $10.00 per acre. Why is this thusly? Who will answer?

Haines—Auchu.

MR. CHARLES AUCHU and MISS ANNIEDELL HAINES were united in marriage at St. Mark's Catholic Church yesterday morning at 8:30, Rev. Father Downey officiating. Miss Josephine Fox served as bride's maid and Mr. Alfred Auchu, brother of the groom, best man. Mr. and Mrs. Auchu at once entered upon housekeeping, having neatly furnished their residence, corner Sixth and Mapel street. Only the immediate relatives and a few friends were invited. Both are well known young people and it ss hoped and believed will live a happy life. Their many friends shower congratulations.

Col. Glenn Writing Life of Senator M. S. Quay.

Col. John A. Glenn, corporation deputy at the Auditor General's Department, and a life long and close friend of the late Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, is collecting data for a volume of "The Life and Public Services of Hon. Matthew Stanley Quay," which will be issued as soon as possible. He has been given possession of considerable data by Senator Quay's family and friends, secured records and literature bearing on the subject, and has collected a great mass of material which he will classify before he starts on the real work of the biography. Colonel Glenn was a frequent guest of the late Senator at Beaver, Washington and his Florida home, and was as close to him, perhaps, as any man outside of his immediate personal family, so that he is eminently qualified to prepare such a biography.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Col. Glenn is well and favorably known in Emporium as former Secretary of P. & E. Land Company. He is well fitted for the work and we may expect an able production.

If you think it slightly over six inches, better throw it back for it may shrink by the time the game warden catches you and his conscience won't shrink for if it did it would no longer be in evidence. A very handsome and substantial monument has just been placed on the lot of Mr. Frank L. Miller, to the memory of his father, set in the Sinnamahoning cemetery. The work was furnished by Foley Bros., Olean, N. Y. This firm also placed a monument in Driftwood cemetery on the lot of Mr. H. M. Bailey.

"Tariff reform should be demanded," says Mr. Cleveland. Certainly. Let the Louisiana Demoerats begin by demanding the removal of duties on sugar and rice; Floridians those on pineapples and citrus fruits, the Kentuckians and Missourians on hemp; the whole South on tobacco, and so on.—Washington "Tribune."

Current Comment.

According to official reports there is a fearful destruction of crops in all parts of the country from various blights and insect pests as well as worms. It seems almost as if the scients made matters worse with their theories, insecticides, fungicides, germicides and importation of parasites. We are now told that the plant enemies and insects are countless. The cotton root rot in Texas will cause a loss of $2,000,000. Potato blight in New York has caused a loss of $10,000,000. There is corn smut in Maryland, alfalfa rust in Ohio, a rice blast in South Carolina, and in other parts of the land tomatoes, cucumbers, asparagras, fruits of all kinds, walnuts, etc., are suffering from one disease or another. Evidently there is much work for the Secretary of Agriculture.

Owing to the reduction in fares from the old world to the new to the trifling sum of $10, immigration conditions are becoming complicated and promise to cause much suffering and detention of emigrants. Recently a ship arrived in Boston with over 140 Greek boys, most of them about nine years of age. They were not permitted to land as it was discovered that they were to be farmed out for menial employment. The Government proposes to enforce a rigid inspection of all imigrants.

Mr. Ion Perdicaris writes that the red handed and red-headed bandit who stole him away from his family and dinner table in a very unceremonious manner, is the most gentlemanly and kindly cut throat he ever met. They dine together every day, play whist, sing patriotic songs, and wonder what all the world is thinking of to send so many war ships to Tangier. It begins to look very much like an opera bouffe, with rag time music by the band.

The visiting Filipinos are to have great receptions in New York city, and many other places. In Bridgeport Conn., there will be an exhibition of the things manufactured in that city from big guns and typewriters to graphophones and submarine boats, and many presents of useful articles will be made. A case of corsets will be given the Filipinos to take home to their "better halfs." Grand Rapids, Mich., the home of boodlers and machine made furniture, declines to have a picnic for the little brown men. There is no accounting for taste.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Metallis iridium possesses a white, steel-like appearance. The knife edges of delicate balances and other bearings which require extreme hardness are often made of it. An alloy of 10 per cent iridium and 90 per cent platinum has been found to be very little affected in volume by changes of temperature and is the substance of which the standard meter kept in the international metric bureau at Paris is made.

The craze for pictures has taken away much desire for dolls, and little girls seem to prefer books, music boxes, tracing or drawing slates and fancy blocks that can be arranged into a number of beautiful figures, if the designs are followed with a chart that accompanies the set. The child-mother instinct that was so beautifully illustrated when a girl was caring for her doll baby seems to be decidedly on the decline.

Princess Royal Island, British Columbia, possesses a remarkable population in the form of an Albino colony of birds and beasts of many species, which live "on the snow line in that island." Already there have been brought three white crows, a white mink, two white kingfishers and several white mallard ducks. The latest of these captures is a raccoon, its white fur being touched with pink on the breast and sides.

The looting of ruins of prehistoric villages located in the valleys of the tributaries of the Colorado and Gila rivers, in Arizona, has stirred up archaeologists to urge their preservation by legislative action for the benefit of students of ethnology. Vandals digging in the ruins find relics, which they dispose of, and so distribute articles of great value in throwing light on the prehistoric inhabitants beyond the reach of ethnologists.

A new and most deadly poison has been discovered recently, as noted in a scientific journal, by Mr. Lascelles Scott, an Englishman. The substance is scientifically known as di-methylarsine cyanide, or more familiarly as cyanide of cacodyl. Three grains of this substance diffused in a room full of people would kill all present. It is a white powder melting at 33 degrees, and boiling at 140 degrees. When exposed to the air it emits a slight vapor, to inhale which is death.

Interest is being revived in the proposal to build a tunnel under the English channel to connect England and France. This was first taken up seriously 50 years ago, and more recently it progressed so far that the work was commenced at each end of the line, but was abandoned some years ago quite suddenly because of the change of attitude assumed by the English nation toward its French neighbor. The matter has been taken up simultaneously on both sides of the water.

When a year old the plumage of the ostrich is usually large enough and fine enough to begin plucking, which is one of the most difficult and dangerous operations of ostriculture. A few of them are driven into a small corral, when one by one they are pushed into a small angular inclosure, and a long, narrow bag is placed over the head, with a hole in the end to breathe through. Then one man holds the bird, while the operator skillfully clips and pulls at the feathers that are ripe. When blinded, the bird becomes very tame.

Rev. Dr. Percy S. Grant, speaking before the League for Political Education, at New York, said that the coming New Yorker would be 6 feet 3 inches high and have the chest measurement of a prize fighter. Judging from the increased standard of morality and intellectuality in our universities since athletics became universal and popular, Dr. Grant says that physical training should be an important part of the public school system. He had noticed that 25 per cent. of the National guardsmen were too poor physically to pass the doctor.

Many stories of big things are told in California, but there is a little thing at the missionary exhibit in the chamber of commerce, Los Angeles, that is attracting much attention. It is the smallest Bible in the world. Displayed in the center of the exhibition hall is a collection of Bibles of divers sizes and styles, but there is one so small that it is kept under glass, for obvious reasons. This is a complete, gilt-edged, morocco bound Bible, containing the full text, and it measures one-half inch in thickness and three-fourths of an inch in length.

THE POLITICAL RIP VAN WINKLE.

DEMOCRATS IN A MUDDLE.

An Independent Paper's View of the Dilemma in Which Opposition Finds Itself.

It is stated in Washington dispatches that leading democratic politicians have been holding conferences in that city and outlining plans for the coming campaign. They are said to be very hopeful and confident. The reorganizers are in the saddle in the pivotal states, and the danger of a Bryan and Hearst bolt is apparently eliminated. Republican discord in Illinois and Wisconsin has brought them cheer and encouragement, and in their mind's eye they already see themselves in control of the house of representatives. Only 16 or 17 congressional districts need to be captured, and that should be a holiday task.

Without stopping to analyze this view, says the Chicago Post, one may ask on what issues these leaders propose to make their campaign. We all know that "conservatism" is to be the watchword, but "mum" and conservatism are two very different things. As Mr. Cockran admonishes his fellow partisans, the democrats cannot expect "to sneak into power." The New York platform will not do. Here is an interesting hint: "Democratic leaders," says a Washington dispatch, "will attack the record of the president and attorney general in failing to prosecute trusts and men connected with them that were declared by the supreme court in the Northern Securities decision to be violating the law."

So? But how will this "issue" be received by the conservative and business elements of the country? It amounts to an indictment of the administration for refusing to run amuck among the corporations. Such an indictment is safe enough in South Carolina, but how will it strike voters in New York and Indiana?

Ex-Gov. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, one of the quiet reorganizers, is quoted as saying: "I believe that the conservative sentiment of the country today is with the democratic party, and if the democratic party can satisfy that sentiment by its action at the national convention, it will receive the approval of the people of the country at the polls next November." Will an attack on the administration's record in relation to trusts, mergers and combinations in theoretical and metaphysical restraint of trade "satisfy" the conservative sentiment? Would that be "sticking close to the precepts of the founders of the government?" Mr. Pattison advises rigid adherence to Jeffersonian principles; do those principles demand that the government shall run amuck among the corporations destroying all that even remotely or indirectly tend to restrain trade and competition?

The perplexed democrats are indeed between the devil and the deep sea. They have to harmonize "conservatism" with the implied promise to run amuck. A superman might accomplish that feat, but the ordinary mortal—never.

CURRENT PRESS COMMENT.

☞The coming presidential campaign will be fought on two issues—the tariff and Roosevelt. The republican party will gladly accept the fight on both.—Philadelphia Press.

☞Mr. Cleveland is a respectable old gentleman, who in his younger days performed more or less arduous political duties. The feeling that the domestic peace and quiet now enjoyed by him should not be disturbed by any sort of enticement is very strong in this state.—Indianapolis Sentinel (Dem.).

☞The outlook of the democrats is rosy. All they need now is an issue, a candidate and a plurality of the votes.—Chicago Tribune.

☞Mr. Bryan is a sour, bitter, disappointed man, who is seeking to maintain some hold on political affairs by arousing the hatred of the public against rich men merely because they are rich.—San Francisco Chronicle.

FAVOR A FOREIGN COUNTRY

Democratic Press and Politicians Solidly Arrayed to Fight a Most Ignoble Fight.

The chairman of the Ohio democratic state convention spoke of "the president of the United States disrupting the republic of Colombia in the interest of the Panama canal grafters." That chairman would be angered if he were told that he is not an American, that he has not one spark of patriotic fire, and that an isthmian canal interests him only because he believes he can find in it material for an attack on the policies of a republican administration. But that is the state of his case.

The democrats of California and of Wisconsin announced that they were for the canal, but were against the Panama treaty and everything which went to make the canal possible.

They denounced the American administration and sympathized with the Colombian government. They put themselves on record as against their country and for a foreign country.

The democrats of Tennessee array themselves against the policy and welfare of their own country. They say they "favor the prompt construction of the trans-isthmian canal, but—" there is always a but—"but we condemn the course of the administration in deliberately pursuing a lawless, revolutionary and dishonorable course in that matter." It is the same old story.

Will the democratic national convention try to make a political issue out of that non-political dream of the centuries—an isthmian canal?

Will it tell the voters that it is in favor of that great work, and in the same breath denounce the administration because it has made the canal a certainty, and call upon the voters to defeat it because of the good it has wrought?

American politics should stop at the shore line. For our necessary political excitement let us quarrel among ourselves at home, but let us face the rest of the world undivided. Let us keep our family quarrels strictly in the family, says the Chicago Tribune.

If the democratic party publicly repines during the coming campaign at the definite progress made toward an interoceanic canal, the democratic party will be overwhelmingly beaten in November. American voters cannot be persuaded by an anti-American eloquence.

Good Campaign Figures.

To find out how much of a country we are one has only to glance over the report of George H. Holmes, chief of the division of foreign markets of the department of agriculture. Mr. Holmes shows that within a year, besides feeding ourselves, we sold the other fellows 1,260,000,000 pounds of meats and kindred products, about 3,500,000,000 pounds of cotton, and enough other agricultural stuff to make up a bill for $878,479,451. In this total was 368,000,000 pounds of tobacco. We fell off in wheat compared with the year previous, but we needed more wheat ourselves and had somewhat less of it. England is still our best customer, although Germany and France are buying more, and we are steadily getting into China and other countries where we have done little heretofore.—Minneapolis Journal.

☞By August no trace will be left of the local feuds in Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, or any other state in which there have been clashes between rival leaders. November is likely to show the west more extensively and overwhelmingly republican even than it was in 1900.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

KNOX WILL SUCCEED QUAY.

Republican Managers in Pennsylvania Agree on Attorney General.

He Will Serve by Appointment Until March 4, 1905—He Is Willing to Accept the Senatorship.

Philadelphia, June 10.—Philander C. Knox, of Pittsburg, attorney general of the United States, was yesterday selected to fill the seat in the United States senate made vacant by the death of Matthew Stanley Quay. He will accept and serve by appointment of Gov. Pennypacker until March 4, the date of the expiration of the late senator's commission. Unless political complications should arise as a result of yesterday's action he will be elected for the full term by the legislature which meets in January. It is expected that Mr. Knox will remain in the cabinet until December.

The selection of Mr. Knox came as a surprise to the politicians of the state. Directly after Senator Quay died his name was among those mentioned for the vacancy, but as no one came forth to support it, very little was heard of his candidacy during the past week. His name was not considered by United States Senator Penrose, who, as chairman of the republican state committee, along with Israel W. Durham, the Philadelphia leader, had the naming of Quay's successor.

On Wednesday, however, Henry C. Frick, of Pittsburg, a director of the United States Steel Corporation, came to this city and formally announced that the attorney general was a candidate for the place and that he came here in Mr. Knox's interest.

This caused considerable agitation in the Pittsburg delegation, which had already named four men for the vacancy. At first it was expected that Mr. Knox would be opposed, but after a series of conferences the Pittsburg delegation accepted Mr. Knox and the public announcement of their action soon followed. The announcement was made by Max Leslie, chairman of the Pittsburg republican city committee.

Washington, June 10.—Just before Attorney General Knox left Washington a few days ago he called on the president and told him that he had been tendered the appointment of United States senator to succeed Mr. Quay and that if the president was willing he would accept. The president told him that while it was true that probably no other man in the country could quite fill the position of attorney general as he had filled it, yet he believed that his services in the senate would be exceptionally valuable, not only to the state of Pennsylvania, but to the whole country.

$150,000 IN CASH.

Mrs. Bennett Will Ask a Court to Order Mr. Bryan to Turn Over the Above Named Sum to Her.

New Haven, Conn., June 10.—An application by Mrs. Grace Bennett will be heard in the probate court, June 20, asking that William J. Bryan be required to bring from New York to the jurisdiction of the court $150,000 in cash and to make immediate payment to her of the $75,000 special bequest which her husband, Philo S. Bennett, made in her favor. It is alleged in the application that Alfred P. Sloan, of the partnership of Bennett, Sloan & Co., has in his hands more than $150,000 which he is willing to turn over to the executor.

It is also declared that it is Mrs. Bennett's opinion that the estate will amount to from $275,000 to $300,000 and that the clause in the will by which Mrs. Bennett is given $75,000 cash outright, together with three houses in Bridgeport, entitles her to priority over any other legatee. It is understood that there will be no opposition to the granting of the petition.

Mr. Bryan is executor of the Bennett estate.

Twenty-seven People Injured.

Des Moines, Ia., June 10.—Twenty-seven people, including several prominent Iowa politicians and a number of old soldiers, were injured in an accident last night on the Mason City & Clear Lake electric line as they were returning to Mason City from the last camp fire of the state G. A. R. encampment. A trailer on a heavily loaded train jumped the track while going at a high rate of speed and turned completely over. Fortunately a culvert kept the car from falling upon the passengers who had been thrown from the windows, which was all that prevented loss of life.

Attention, Veterans!

Washington, June 10.—The general land office has completed preparation of blank affidavits for use by ex-soldiers who desire to appoint agents to enter land for them in the ceded Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota. The old soldiers are the only persons who will be permitted to make entries without being on the ground, and it is desired that uniform powers of attorney should be used. The blanks can be secured by writing to the commissioner of the general land office.

He Had a Roll of Green Goods.

St. Louis, June 10.—A man giving his name as Marcus Crahan, aged 34, was arrested yesterday at the Delmar race track and is now held a prisoner pending his arraignment before United States Commissioner Grain on the charge of having in his possession counterfeit money. In the prisoner's possession was found a total of $4,000 in $100 gold certificates which are said to be counterfeits similar to those passed last Saturday or Monday on bookmakers at the Kenilworth and Gravesend tracks. The bills are declared to be dangerous counterfeits.

FIRST TIME IN 50 YEARS.

Yankee Marines Landed at Tangier to Protect Belgian Legation.

Washington, June 9.—American marines have landed in Africa. Admiral Chadwick yesterday cabled the navy department from Tangier as follows:

"I have placed a guard at the Belgian legation, having been asked to do so by our consul general here."

It is said at the state department that there is ample precedent for the employment of an American naval force for the temporary protection of the exposed interests of another power which has no available force at hand. A few years ago it was the common understanding that British vessels should protect American interests in South American ports where the United States had no warships, and that United States gunboats should look after British interests exposed in the same way. We also have looked after German interests in San Domingo and elsewhere.

It is stated that Admiral Chadwick in landing his marines in Africa for the first time in half a century therefore was but meeting the requirement of international comity. It is supposed here that the Belgian legation is in an outlying section of the city easily accessible to the tribesmen of the interior.

The navy department has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Chadwick, at Tangier, to the effect that he has been informed that Perdicaris and his stepson, Varley, are in need of medical assistance and that the consul general has sent to Raisuli to inquire whether a surgeon will be given safe conduct. The admiral says that if so, one will be sent in company with the shereef of Wasan. Raisuli's reply is expected to-day.

The state department has received unofficial assurance through Mr. Gummere, who had it from the British consul at Fez, that the sultan of Morocco will accede to all of Raisuli's terms. The bandit's demand that Great Britain and the United States shall guarantee the execution of the sultan's promises, however, is the sticking point, and this probably can be gotten around only by the acceptance of this obligation by Great Britain or France, or some other country not so strongly bound as the United States by its traditions not to entangle itself in the internal affairs of other countries. It is stated positively that under no conditions can the United States government execute these guarantees.

MISS TAYLOR LOSES.

A Court Decides that Her Removal from Office was Perfectly Legal.

Washington, June 9.—The court of appeals of the District of Columbia yesterday affirmed the decision of the court below in refusing to compel the secretary of war by mandamus proceedings to reinstate Miss Rebecca J. Taylor as a clerk in the war department. Miss Taylor admitted the authorship of a newspaper article which the defense claimed to be a severe reflection on the president of the United States. For this she was dismissed. Reinstatement was sought through the courts on the ground that Miss Taylor was removed because of her political belief and that this was contrary to the civil service law.

Justice Clabaugh in rendering the opinion announced the purpose of the civil service law to be to restrict the power of appointment; that the right of removal in the appointing power was not restricted, with the single exception that no removal could be made because of the refusal of an employe to contribute money or services to a political party. Consequently, the opinion said, the court had no right to review the action of an official in making a removal from the service. To grant this right, it added, would be to demoralize the public service.

DISASTER AVERTED.

Two Boys Prevented the Wrecking of a Passenger Train.

Great Barrington, Mass., June 9.—The wrecking of the Pittsfield-New York express with the almost certainty of great loss of life, was barely averted yesterday by Raymond Perbizet and Stephen McCue, two boys. A rain storm had undermined the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and carried away 25 feet of the roadbed. The dangerous spot was discovered by the youths shortly before the express was due here.

The boys ran to their home and, procuring a red sweater, returned to the track and flagged the train. The engine was brought to a standstill within a few yards of the washout. The train was well filled with passengers, who rewarded the boys by making up a purse for them.

Says the Reports Were False.

Detroit, Mich., June 9.—J. H. Simpson, assistant general manager of the Pere Marquette railway, yesterday before a commission that is taking testimony in the case brought by the railroads of the state in the United States court to test the ad valorem tax law, admitted that the reports of the directors of the road to the stockholders and the state railroad commissioner for the years 1900, 1901 and 1902 were not correct. Mr. Simpson stated that more than $1,000,000 a year had been shifted from the operating expense account in 1900, 1901 and 1902 for the purpose of showing a more prosperous condition of affairs than existed.

Murderous Jealousy.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Mary Richardson, a young married woman, was yesterday stabbed through the heart by May Richardson, her sister-in-law, during a quarrel. The women met in a real estate office and after a few words May Richardson drew a penknife and drove the blade into the other woman's heart. Jealousy was the cause.

Woolen Mill Burned.

Greenville, Pa., June 9.—The Pearce woolen mill was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is about $80,000, with $45,000 insurance.

The Engines of War.

At a dinner during the Franco-German war Disraeli did not open his mouth till near the end of the entertainment, when he observed in his most sententious manner: "The French embarked in this war because they conceived that they had the superiority in arms of precision; they had the chassepot and they had the mitrailleuse (which he pronounced "mitraillouse"); but of the third engine, called a man, they did not possess even a single specimen." This said, he relapsed into perfect silence.—From the Diary of Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff.

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 6.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very nearly losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:—

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been sick four years. She doctored with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day.

"She used to have Rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone too.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God-send to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

The following curious rule appears under paragraph 68 of the municipal regulations governing burials at Giessen, Hesse: "Interments are only permitted after death has taken place. In all other cases a certificate signed by the mayor is required."—London Mail.

Russo-Japanese War Bulletins.

MANY RUMORS AFLOAT.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The government, it is authoritatively said, has no more information than the public of happenings in the neighborhood of Port Arthur. The lack of official news from southern Liao Tung was responsible for the usual number of rumors yesterday, among them the reports from Che Foo and elsewhere that the Russian squadron had made a sortie from Port Arthur and that the Japanese had begun a land attack upon the fortress. The general staff could neither confirm nor deny these stories.

Liao Yang, June 8.—The Japanese have drawn in their advance guards from Vafangow. They blew up part of the railway and the telegraph station on the night of June 3. The damage was soon repaired.

Cossacks are harrassing the Japanese towards Port Arthur. Cossacks searching the hills occasionally catch detached parties unawares. In the clothing of a Japanese officer who was killed documents were found showing that the Japanese had lost heavily in the fighting on May 30.

London, June 8.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in Tokio cables:

"The commander of the fourth Japanese flotilla, who has returned to the rendezvous of the fleet from a reconnoisance in the vicinity of Port Arthur, mentions the loss of the Russian gunboat Giliak and the blowing up of another Russian gunboat about the same time."

A DEFEAT FOR THE JAPS.

London, June 9.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from St. Petersburg transmits the following from Liao Yang:

"The Japanese on June 6, according to Chinese reports, made several sustained and stubborn attacks on Port Arthur simultaneously by land and sea. They were repulsed with severe loss.

"The position of the Japanese in Kwan-Tung is said to be precarious.

"There are rumors from the same sources that the Vladivostok squadron has effected a junction with the Port Arthur fleet, that a naval battle took place and that the Japanese lost four large ships."

A dispatch from St. Petersburg announces that a telegram has been received from Mukden saying:

"According to information received here a Japanese squadron of nine vessels has been bombarding the coast between Siueng-Yu-Cheng and Kai-Chou, on the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula just below New Chwang, since June 7."

Tokio, June 9.—Four Japanese gunboats which made a close reconnoisance of Port Arthur harbor at midnight on June 6 for the purpose of examining the entrance, were exposed to a severe cannonade. Gunboat No. 4 was hit eight times and sustained some damage. One of her sailors was killed and two were wounded.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post telegraphs under date of June 8:

"Gen. Stakelberg's Russian brigade marching in the direction of Port Arthur suffered a reverse on Saturday near Wafangtien and retired to Tashichiao."

HAMMERING PORT ARTHUR.

Indianapolis, June 10.—A special cable received by the Indianapolis News from its war correspondent says:

"Che Foo, June 9.—The long contemplated attack by the Japanese on Port Arthur begun early this morning.

"The Russian forces around the beleagured city were reinforced by the troops which had garrisoned Dalny and Kin Chou.

"The Russian vessels in the harbor, with their great guns, aided the land forces in repelling the attack. The fighting still goes on."

St. Petersburg, June 10.—All Japanese movements are interpreted here as caused by anxiety to hamper as much as possible whatever movement Gen. Kuropatkin may be making to help Port Arthur. Not only have the Japanese bombarded the west coast of Liao Tung peninsula where the railway runs close to the shore, making feints of debarkation, but Gen. Kuroki has assumed the offensive eastward. He has sent an overpoweringly strong column that drove out the Russians from a fortified position at Saimatze, 20 miles northwest of Feng-Wang-Cheng, inflicting a loss of 100 men.

Che Foo, June 10.—A Chinese formerly employed in the machine shops at Port Arthur, who arrived here Thursday, says that only five of the nine largest Russian ships at Port Arthur are capable of going to sea, and that steam is kept up on but three of the five sound vessels. All the guns from the damaged ships have been removedto the forts.

RUSSIANS WERE DEFEATED.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The emperor has received from Gen. Kuropatkin the following telegram, dated June 9:

"The Japanese bombardment June 8 of the coast between Senyuchen and Kaiping caused no loss of life nor material damage, although a considerable number of shells were fired.

"June 7 the Japanese continued their march toward Siuyen by the Takushan and Feng-Wang-Cheng roads. Their advance guard did not appear nearer than five miles south and east of Siuyen. On the morning of June 8 a Japanese infantry brigade, two mountain batteries and five squadrons of cavalry marched against Siuyen. About 11 o'clock the Japanese appeared before the town on the south side, but were checked by a very successful fire from our batteries.

"Japanese infantry then began advancing against the town from the east by the Feng-Wang-Cheng road and came in contact with the Cossacks holding the pass. After two hours' fighting the Cossacks were obliged to retire and our artillery opened fire along the pass, not allowing the Japanese to establish themselves. At this moment a Japanese mountain battery arrived and took a position to the south, but after firing a few rounds was silenced by our battery. A second Japanese battery did not succeed in getting into action, but was compelled to evacuate its position under the fire of our guns.

"In the course of the fight a flanking movement by several battalions of Japanese infantry was observed northeast of Siuyen, threatening our line of retreat. Consequently our Cossacks gradually withdrew five miles from Siuyen, keeping up their fire from a battery on a dense column of the enemy at a range of 600 yards. The fire slackened about 5 in the afternoon.

"In the affair June 7 at Vafangow we had one rifleman wounded, but the Japanese sustained considerable losses. According to the testimony of residents they had 40 killed or wounded."

Fusan, Korea, June 11.—The first Japanese army has recently been engaged in most important operations. For two days past four columns have been reconnoitering the roads toward Liao-Yang, Hai Cheng, Saimatza and Siuyen and have occupied towns on those roads, dislodging the Russians, numbering several hundred, from each, after sharp fighting. The Japanese casualties were 65 men killed or wounded.

Alleged Firebug Arrested.

Chicago, June 10.—Charles Hughes, who says that he came from New York, has been arrested on a charge of being a member of a band of incendiaries who, according to the police and fire departments, have started a number of fires on the northwest side of the city, causing a property loss in the aggregate of about $100,000. Hughes was arrested on a street car by Edward Maher, a fireman, who noticed that his hair and eyebrows had been singed, and that his clothing looked as though he had been through a few hot places.

A Scheme that Failed.

Muscatine, Ia., June 11.—Robert Morrison, son of County Clerk Joseph Morrison, and Charles Stoker, both aged 19, were arrested yesterday by federal officers, charged with sending letters to Peter Musser, a wealthy lumberman, threatening to kill him and his daughter unless he deposited a large sum of money in a secret place. The first letter was sent ten days ago and demanded $3,000. No heed was paid to it and a second and third letter were sent demanding $4,000. Suspicion pointed to the young men arrested and they confessed.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT.

Union Miners Want an Investigation of Colorado Affairs.

Deportations Are the Order of the Day at Cripple Creek—"All Agitators Must Go," Says Gen. Bell.

Victor, Col., June 11.—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of the men killed Monday at Independence says that the men were killed by the explosion of an infernal machine, and that the crime is one of similar crimes committed in the Cripple Creek district for the purpose of intimidating non-union miners.

Denver, June 11.—The executive board of the Western Federation of Miners has decided to appeal to President Roosevelt to investigate the conditions in Colorado. Secretary Haywood is instructed to send the following telegram to the president:

"A duty devolves upon you as president of the United States to investigate the terrible crimes that are being perpetrated in Colorado in the name of law and order. We will render every possible assistance to the proper authorities in such investigation, to the end that the people of the country may realize the outrages that are being inflicted on innocent persons by those in temporary official power."

Cripple Creek, Col., June 11.—Deportations are the order of the day. Gen. Bell, military commander, has ordered that 76 members of the Miners' union shall be taken outside of Teller county on a special train in accordance with the recommendations of the Citizens' Alliance committee which examined them.

"Within 48 hours this district will be rid of all agitators and other objectionable men," said Gen. Bell. "One deportation after another will be made until none of the men who have terrorized the district so long will be left here. We intend to continue arresting men who are not wanted here and they will be run out as fast as possible."

The committee having in charge the petition being circulated among merchants and business men pledging themselves not to employ union labor ordered the expunging of the American Federation of Labor from the list of objectionable unions, because the printers, pressmen, stereotypers and newspaper writers are affiliated with that body, and to place the federation under the ban would necessarily involve the suspension of the Cripple Creek Times and the Evening Star, which employ union forces.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Collections are Slow, but There Is Growing Confidence in the Future.

New York, June 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Current trade conditions are without change and collections continue slow as a rule, but there is growing confidence in the future, declares exhibiting an inclination to prepare for fall and winter on a larger scale. There is still much complaint that the weather is unseasonable for retail distribution, and payments are not prompt. Reports regarding the building trades are almost uniformly favorable, structural work increasing as the season advances, and transportation prospects are brighter on the lakes.

Railway earnings, now practically complete for April, show a loss of only 2.9 per cent., compared with last year, and surpass the corresponding month of any preceding year. The decline in the cost of living has continued without interruption since March 1.

List prices for iron and steel products are maintained in most cases, mainly because of agreements rather than the support of consumption. Demand is extremely limited.

Commercial failures this week in the United States are 227, against 251 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 20, against 14 last year.

A CROP BULLETIN.

A Decrease in Acreage of Spring Wheat as Compared with 1903.

Washington, June 11.—Preliminary returns to the department of agriculture on the acreage of spring wheat sown indicate an area of about 17,140,800 acres, a decrease of 116,100 acres, or 7 per cent. from the revised estimate of the acreage sown last year.

The average condition of spring wheat on June 1 was 93.4, as compared with 95.9 at the corresponding date last year and a ten-year average of 93.8.

The average condition of winter wheat on June 1 was 77.7, as compared with 76.5 on May 1, 1904, and a ten-year average of 79.8.

The total reported area in oats is about 27,646,000 acres, a reduction of 86,300 acres from the area sown last year.

The average condition of oats on June 1 was 89.2, against 85.5 on June 1, 1903, and a ten-year average of 89.9.

The acreage reported as under barley exceeds that harvested last year by about 153,000 acres, or 3.1 per cent. Average condition of barley is 90.5.

The acreage under rye shows a reduction of 6 per cent. from that harvested last year.

Two Coiners are Captured.

New York, June 11.—Through a boy telling a patrolman that he "knew where he could get money for nothing, as he saw men making it," the police of the One Hundred and Fourth street station yesterday caught two men in the act of making counterfeit coins. At the same time they captured one of the most complete outfits for counterfeiting found in a long time. It included a stamp press capable of making 500 coins an hour, a portable forge, engravers, carpenters and blacksmiths' tools, a safe thought to be filled with coins.

Some After Reflections.

The selection of Philander C. Knox as United States Senator has been hailed not only throughout the state but throughout the country with every expression of satisfaction. The universal approval is entirely just. It is a choice which fills the full measure of independent thought, party organization, Senatorial stature, State pride and national interest.

We do not imagine that the millennium has come. Politics will still be politics, and human kind will still be human kind. But it is not too much to say that the emergence of Mr. Knox as the solution of the Senatorial problem marks the dawn of a better day in Pennsylvania. It is itself proof that the hand that lay so heavily on the state has been lifted. It indicates at least a healthy breath of new atmosphere in which intellect and independence will not be altogether stifled.

It is true that powerful forces remain—it might almost be said dominant forces. Some of them have long been potent and some of them have had the potentiality of controlling influence. Their hand was plainly visible in the determination—too plainly visible. It would be a mockery to affect not to see it. Had they been more adroit and careful they would have been just as effective without so ineptly exposing the action to criticism. But the gratifying and hopeful thing is that these forces, little dexterous as they were in actual handling, stood in this case for brains, character, independence and individuality. When they favored Mr. Knox they reflected credit on themselves. Mr. Knox never was and never will be any man's man. It isn't in his strong, sound, sterling fibre

We dismiss all serious consideration of the pretence that these forces in Pennsylvania or any allied elements outside joined together to make Mr. Knox Senator in order to get rid of him as Attorney Generel. There isn't anything in it. In the first place, no elements joined which were not in and of Pennsylvania. All that participated were Pennsylvanians. They acted from Pennsylvania pride and interests. In the second place, they know and the New York Trusts know that the movement of the Administration for the legitimate regulation of corporotions and for the restraint of injurious and unlawful combinations will not be affected by the change of Mr. Knox from the Cabinet to the Senate. The successor of Mr. Knox will be a man who like himself, will carry out the President's policy. In the Senate as in the Cabinet, and perhaps quite as effectively. Mr. Knox will stand for the perfection of that sound and wholesome legislation which, without making war against legitimate industrial and commercial organization, aims to check its abuse against the interests of the people. And all who support him know it, understand it and approve it.

With these preliminary and incidental considerations cleared out of the way we come to the intrinsic character and sure influence of the selection. Mr. Knox will take his seat in the Senate as the peer of the foremost. His position will be strengthened with time, as that of every strong Senator is. But he has not a place to make. It is already made. The master mind in the Government voyages of legal discovery and triumph in the last three years, who made his own chart and pointed his own campass does not have to hunt for a footing. The leaders of the Senate—Fyre, Aldrich, Platt of Connecticut, Spooner, Allison, Lodge, Hale, Foraker and their sort—will welcome him to their ranks. They know his work and his personality. His influence and counsel, his clear head, his grasp of great problems, his terse, incisive exposition will count from the start.

His election at once gives distinction to the State. It lifts Pennsylvania to a level in the Senate commensurate with her industrial and political position and her rank in the Union. Every Pennsylvanian with pride in the State will hold his head higher. The whole country will have greater respect for the Keystone of the arch, and no little of the opprobrium which has fallen upon us will be obliterated. For Mr. Knox not only fulfills the ideal in the popular conception, but he will vindicate the election in results. His reputation does not exceed his substantive and practical ability. When he entered the Cabinet he was not known outside of the arena of his profession. He was modest, reserved and unobtrusive. But an Attorney General cannot escape questions, and within a month he had made his impress. His quick apprehension, his mastery of the crucial issues, his lucid and cogent statement soon demonstrated that there was a new force at the table. When he made his profound speech on Trusts at Pittsburg the whole country recognized both the lawyer and the statesman. Whether he will be a ready, instant, trenchant debater and gladiator like Spooner and Foraker is not so certain, but he will speak powerfully when there is occasion, and in the councils and deliberation of the Senate he will be among the chiefs.

What is to be the effect of his selection on politics within the State? We have said that he fills the measure of independent thought and party organization, and we mean just that. He satisfies independent sentiment because he comes up to the Senatorial standard in every respect. And he will at the same time strengthen the Republican organization because he brings popular approval and moral support. He lifts the party level. When the organization puts such men in great representative positions, it meets the popular demand. In the practical politics of the State he will neither be a bull in a china shop nor a lamb among lions. His influence will be wholesome and salutary. He will aim to build up and perpetuate by building on broad and sound foundations. He will be tactful but not altogether passive. Wherever he is Mr. Knox is a positive force, and both in the Senate and in politics his individuality will be felt. It was a good day for Pennsylvania when his star rose to the meridian.—Philadelphia Press.

A Wonderful Saving.

The largest Methodist Church in Georgia, calculated to use over one hundred gallons of the usual kind of mixed paint in painting their church.

They used only 32 gallons of the Longman & Martinez Paint with 24 gallons of linseed oil. Actual cost of paint made was less than $1.20 per gallon.

Saved over eighty ($80.00) dollars in paint, and got a big donation besides.

EVERY CHURCH will be given a liberal quantity whenever they paint.

For a hundred years or more Witch Hazel has been recognized as a superior remedy, but it remained for E. C. The "Nagging" Habit.

As a rule, women are more unselfish than men, but very ofted they lack the right kind of consideration for their husbands. They will treasure up all the cares and worriments of the day for their husbands' ears when they come home at night, probably feeling weary and tired. If the husband appears unsympathetic, the wife will imagine herself a much injured person. Then follows "the little rift in the lute" that destroys the sweet harmony of the home. The woman who makes her home happy and who is always pleasing in her husband's eye is the one who exercises those two indispensible qualities, tact and cheerfulness. Speaking mildly, the woman who "nags" has precious little loveliness in her character. Her husband deserves the greatest sympathy, for certainly the man with a "nagging" wife has an unhappy lot. A woman is only increasing her husband's faults when she is forever depicting them to him. One sweet quality in a woman will do more good than any number of reprovals.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Quickness Is Relative.

The careful American observer soon finds that the standard of quickness is to be determined in England, as everywhere else, by the point of view. People who go slowly on new ground may turn out to be quick enough when wholly at home with any particular line of thought.

How odious and complicated, for instance, seems to an American observer the computation of pounds, shillings and pence! It seems strange that any nation should consent for a day to employ anything but a decimal currency. Yet with what lightning rapidity does a London bookkeeper make his computations! What a life of tedious formality seems that of an English house servant! Yet there was no slowness of intellect in that footman in an earl's family who, when his young lord fell over the banisters and the next of kin called to ask if the elder boy was hurt, answered promptly, "Killed, my lord!" thus accomplishing in an instant the transfer of the title appertaining to an earl's eldest son and heir only.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson in Atlantic.

A Precious Manuscript.

There is now in St. Petersburg the oldest known MS. of the New Testament in Greek, saved from destruction by the merest chance many years ago. Crossing the hall of a convent at the foot of Mount Sinai, Constantine Tischendorf saw a basketful of parchment leaves on their way to be burned. Two baskets had already gone, he was told, and all that he could secure for himself was a small bundle of odd leaves. But the monks, now interested in the "waste paper," saved the rest from the fire, and nine years after, on a return visit to the convent, Tischendorf found that the stewart had, wrapped in a red cloth, "a bulky kind of volume," which proved to be the whole of the New Testament, with parts hitherto unknown, and parts of the Old, which had long been sought. He begged the volume for the czar, and today it lies, well preserved in spite of its 1,500 years of age, among the treasures of the Russian capital.—London Mail.

The "pets" took a trip to Emporium Wednesday and had no trouble in trimming the "Dynamiters" to the tune of 13 to 2. The trip was devoid of excitement except when Ikey lost the hotel and Sinex his bat bag. Stone Proud of Capital.

Ex-Governor Stone, of Pittsburg, is enthusiastic over the beauties of the New York State Capitol. The former Governer said after the last meeting of the Capitol Commission, of which he is a member:

"The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is going to get the worth of every dollar that is to be expended on the new building. The architect is wide-awake and is condemning material when it does not come up to the specifications. Many people will think I am exaggerating when I say that I believe the new Capitol will surpass in beauty the Congressional Library in Washington, now considered the finest specimen of Government architecture and decoration in the country, but I am not.

The new Capitol will have the finest marble interior work in the country. The greatest artists of the world are engaged in the decorative work. Abbey, the renowned mural painter, is in charge of much of it, and he is giving the State something of which it can always be proud in his presentation of the different types of our people.

OUR SERIAL.

THE WHISTLER.

Throughout the sunny day he whistled on his way,
On high and low, and gay and sweet,
The melody rang down the street—
Till all the weary, worn and gray,
Smiled at their work, or stopped to say:
"Now God be thanked that youth is fair,
And light of heart and free from care."

What time the wind blew high, he whistled and went by.
Then clarion clear on every side
The song was scattered far and wide;
Like birds above a storm that fly,
The silver notes soared to the sky:
"Oh! soul whose courage does not fail
But with a song can meet the gale."

And when the rain fell fast, he whistled as he passed;
A little tune the whole world knew,
A song of love, of love most true;
On through the mist it came at last
To one by sorrow overcast:
"Dear Christ," she said, "by night and day
They serve who praise—as well as pray."

And when the fog hung gray, he whistled on his way.
The little children in his train,
With rosy lips caught up the strain.
Then I, to hear what he might say,
Followed with them, that somber day;
"Is it for joy of life," quoth I,
"Good sir, you go a-whistling by?"
He smiled and sighed and shook his head:
"I cheer my own sad heart," he said.

CHAPTER XVI.

DARREL ACCUSED AS McCLOUD.

"Ah, the marshal," said Darrel, relieved to find that the officer was one of the first to be drawn to the scene. "I am glad you have come."

The marshal pushed farther into the room, followed by his companion.

"What's been going on here?"

"Murgatroyd and I were settling an old score," answered Darrel, pulling his disarranged clothing into shape, "but I am glad to say that it did not result seriously."

"Where is Murgatroyd now?"

The officer had peered about the place and had even cast a hasty glance into the inner office.

"I have him—safe," Darrel smiled grimly. "Who is this gentleman?" he asked, turning to the thick-set man with the leather case under his arm.

"That's Doc Payton," replied the bewildered marshal.

"Not the same gentleman who had charge of the body of Sturgis?"

"I am the coroner," spoke up Payton, "and held the inquest."

"Better and better," said Darrel. "Naturally, gentlemen, you are curious. You see me follow Murgatroyd upstairs to this place and later you hear sounds of a scuffle and come to investigate. What you see merely increases your curiosity and suspicion. I want to talk with the two of you and beg of you to set a couple of those chairs upright and be seated."

As he finished, Darrel settled himself comfortably on one corner of the desk. The marshal was inclined to parley on Murgatroyd's account.

"I want to understand this thing," he began, aggressively, and Darrel interrupted him with:

"Precisely! The quickest way to understand it is by listening to what I wish to say. If anything has gone wrong, I am here to be held to account."

"He's right about that, Merrick," said the doctor, righting one of the overturned chairs and seating himself in it. "Let's hear him."

Merrick had an uncomfortable feeling that matters were strangely wrong, somehow, and he picked up the lamp and stepped apart to survey the other room. He came back directly and again set the lamp on the desk.

"I don't like the looks of things," he grumbled as he sat down, "and we seem to be leaving the whole matter to you entire. But I reckon you can fire away."

Darrel, fearing interruption from the vault, plunged into the subject at once.

"What was the verdict of the coroner's jury in the Sturgis case, doctor?" he asked.

"It was found that Sturgis met his death by a bullet, 45-caliber, fired by one Nathan Darrel, of San Francisco," returned the doctor.

"Were the proofs of Darrel's guilt quite conclusive?"

"The jury found them so."

"But you, in your own mind; were you quite convinced?"

"I don't recognize your right to ask such a question. I am the coroner and I have repeated to you the jury's verdict."

In spite of this Darrel could see plainly that Dr. Payton had an honest doubt.

"What's the use of splittin' hairs?" said the marshal. "And what has the murder of Sturgis got to do with your row with Murgatroyd?"

"Just this, Mr. Merrick," returned Darrel, steadily; "Murgatroyd killed Sturgis—"

"What!" exploded Merrick, starting up.

The doctor was less amazed, although not a little startled.

Darrel repeated his words.

"Why," exclaimed the marshal, "Sturgis and Murgatroyd was friends!"

"Murgatroyd would have no motive," added the doctor.

"Murgatroyd and Darrel were not friends," said Darrel.

"That's no news," came from the marshal. "It don't bear on Murgatroyd and Sturgis, anyhow."

"Yes, it does," persisted Darrel; "Murgatroyd killed Sturgis in such a way that they would hang Darrel for it."

"Preposterous!" declared Dr. Payton.

"You're a fool," averred the marshal, frankly. "Do you think Murgatroyd would shoot a friend down in cold blood just for the sake of having Darrel hung?"

"Did you ever know Murgatroyd to make a play that wasn't cruel, crafty and safe?" asked Darrel. "He's a snake and would trail his slimy length over any friendship for the sake of getting his fangs into an enemy's throat."

"Be reasonable, young man," said the doctor, impatiently, "be reasonable."

"Talk's cheap," supplemented the marshal. "It would take strong proofs to make me believe anything like that."

"Gentlemen," resumed Darrel, "I happen to know that Nate Darrel came to this town on the day the murder was committed. He came to Sandy Bar to settle his differences with Murgatroyd and, directly after he reached the camp, made straight for this office.

"Murgatroyd was out in the hills and Darrel went into that private office and wrote a line for him. Murgatroyd had forgotten his revolver and left it behind—it was lying on the desk in front of Darrel as he wrote his note.

"Before leaving the room Darrel marked every cartridge in that gun—"

It was then the doctor's turn to leap from his chair.

"You know Darrel did that?" he interrupted.

"I do."

"Why did he do it?"

"Because he feared Murgatroyd would shoot him down from behind."

"Still," returned the doctor, sinking back into his chair, "I can't see—"

"In his pocket-book Darrel placed a slip of paper stating that, if he met with foul play, the coroner would please recall that Lester Murgatroyd had sworn to shoot him on sight; and that, if the bullet that took Darrel's life bore the letter 'M,' it would be found to correspond with other cartridges in Murgatroyd's revolver."

Dr. Payton drew a deep breath and Merrick straightened out in his chair, thrust his hands into his trousers' pockets and peered at Darrel through half-closed eyes.

MURGATROYD CAME CHARGING OUT, REVOLVER IN HAND.

"The bullet that killed Sturgis bore such a mark," said Payton, slowly. "I probed for it myself and it hasn't been out of my possession since."

"Why in the fiend's name didn't you tell me something about that?" asked Merrick, his indignant eyes on the doctor.

"The jury knew of it," answered Payton. "We all kept quiet about it, hoping that something like this might develop."

"But what do we know about this fellow?" queried Merrick, jerking his head toward Darrel; "he's a stranger in camp and his story may be cut out of whole cloth."

"A month has elapsed since the shooting," went on Payton, addressing Darrel. "Why have you kept silent so long?"

"The delay was unavoidable," replied Darrel.

"Possibly, but the chances are it has defeated the ends of justice providing what you say is true. If we can find Murgatroyd's revolver in his possession, Merrick," the doctor added, turning to the marshal, "and if the revolver, after these four weeks, is found to contain the marked cartridges, this man proves his case."

Darrel's heart leaped in his breast. He was sure of Murgatroyd's guilt and the fact that the revolver would now be found upon him—barring the technical point that it had been out of his possession for the four weeks—would prove his guilt.

The technical point, which Murgatroyd could not prove without Darrel's help, was the only thing that could throw a cloud over Darrel's theory. Darrel was just asking himself how he should proceed in dealing with that phase of the question when another diversion occurred.

Roy Lenyard stepped into the room and moved resolutely toward the group sitting around the lamp on the desk.

"Mr. Merrick," said he, sharply, "I requested you to wait below until I rejoined you and the doctor."

"Things happened up here, Lenyard," returned the marshal, "that we had to look after. There was a fight of some kind, as you can see,"—Merrick nodded toward the overturned cabinet—"and Doc and I breezed in. But that don't make no difference. Here we are and if you've got a card up your sleeve now's your chance to play it."

"Then," cried Lenyard, whirling on Darrel and leveling a forefinger in his direction, "that man is Junius McCloud and I demand that you put him under arrest. It was he, and not Nate Darrel, that killed the man you know as Jack Sturgis!"

"Holy Smoke!" roared the marshal, on his feet in a second. "Why, he's all but proved that Murgatroyd did it. First thing I know you fellows 'll have it on to me—or Doc, there."

CHAPTER XVII.

DARREL UNMASKED.

Darrel's amazement equaled the marshal's and the doctor's. So firm was his belief in Murgatroyd's guilt that he had heretofore left McCloud entirely out of his calculations.

Before Lenyard could follow up his startling announcement with an explanation, the sallow-faced clerk pushed into the room, paused, and looked around him, aghast at the disorder.

"Where's—where's Murgatroyd?" he asked.

"We don't want Murgatroyd now," said Lenyard and drew close to the clerk and whispered to him.

The clerk whispered a reply, five words of which Darrel happened to overhear—"down the hall—tuckered out." Who was down the hall and tuckered out? Darrel roused himself with freshened interest.

"This is most astounding, young man," said he to Lenyard, with jeering incredulity.

"The truth comes that way, sometimes," returned Lenyard.

"But your accusation is arrant nonsense," persisted Darrel, feigning angry impatience. "These gentlemen"—he waved his hand toward Payton and Merrick—"will not believe you. I have already proved my case against Murgatroyd."

"Not exactly proved it," qualified the doctor. "The revolver has yet to be found and examined. In this country five loads don't often remain in a gun for a month. I'm not very hopeful about your end of it, although Darrel's ruse was a clever one."

"What was the ruse?" asked Lenyard.

The doctor told him, with now and then a word from Merrick.

When the recital was finished, expressive looks flashed between the clerk and Lenyard.

"The marking of those bullets," declared Lenyard, "proves that McCloud killed Sturgis."

"Why in the fiend's name should McCloud kill Sturgis?" asked Merrick. "It wasn't McCloud that quarreled with Sturgis in Hawkbill's."

"There couldn't have been any motive," spoke up the doctor, who seemed to be a stickler on that phase of the question.

"You'll not find Murgatroyd's revolver in Murgatroyd's possession," insisted Lenyard doggedly. "If you find it anywhere you'll find it in McCloud's pocket. Look and see."

"Come on, Merrick," said Darrel, getting up and raising his hands above his head.

"You'll not find it," remarked Lenyard while the marshal was making his search; "he wouldn't be so willing to let you look, if he had it. He's got rid of it somewhere."

"Any one would know the old man's gun," observed the clerk; "there ain't another like it in the hull of Montana."

"I've seen it a dozen times," said the marshal as he returned to his chair without finding the weapon. "You've opened this up, Lenyard, and it's up to you to make good."

"Yes," said the doctor, "and be very careful, Roy. It's a very serious matter."

"It was serious for Darrel," answered the young man warmly, "to have his good name taken away from him."

"Good name!" echoed Darrel derisively. "A gambler, gentlemen," he went on, turning to the doctor and the marshal, "a man who follows the cards for a living. This boy has a peculiar way of looking at things."

Lenyard grew angry.

"McCloud," said he, "I told you in Hawkbill's that I wasn't done with you."

"Give us your proofs," said Darrel, shortly.

"Dr. Payton," continued the young man, "you know how hard I have worked to clear Darrel's name during the last month because I felt sure of his innocence. I did not go to you with what I had discovered because I was waiting to find this man McCloud.

"On the night Sturgis was murdered, McCloud was in that private room, there, with Murgatroyd. Murgatroyd had been very late in getting back from the hills and he had found a letter from Darrel that made him savage and desperate. He looked out of the street window and saw Darrel returning to Hawkbill's after having gone with me to the hotel.

"Telling McCloud to remain where he was, Murgatroyd rushed out of the room, but did not take his revolver with him. Don't forget that point, gentlemen. Strange as it may seem to you, Murgatroyd was so excited he did not take his revolver.

"McCloud picked up the weapon and stepped to the open window. He leaned out, and down the street, in the glare of light from the dance-hall opposite, he saw Darrel confronted by Sturgis. He raised the revolver, sighted carefully, and fired. Then he rushed away, pushing the weapon into his pocket; rushed out through this very room, I'm telling you, and failed to see Jim Glenn who was standing here, a foot from the door leading into that other room. Isn't that so, Glenn?"

Lenyard appealed to the sallow-faced clerk who was leaning against the wall picking nervously at the sleeve of his coat.

"That's so," said Jim Glenn, "but it will cost me my job, and maybe a whole lot of trouble besides, when the old man hears what I've told."

Merrick hitched his chair alongside of Darrel's and the doctor turned a piercing look on the clerk.

"Why did you keep this information to yourself, Glenn?" he demanded. "Don't you know that it caused us to fix the crime on an innocent man? It drove him to his death, that is just what it did. Why didn't you come to me, or to Mr. Merrick, and tell of this?"

"The old man gave me $100 to keep my mouth shut."

"Ah!" cried the doctor; "and why did he do that?"

"Because he wanted Darrel hung."

"Accessory after the fact!" exclaimed Payton triumphantly. "It means the penitentiary, anyhow."

"That's what," assented the marshal. "Blamed tough on Darrel, though. I recken I'd better put these on you, McCloud."

Merrick drew a pair of handcuffs from his pocket and leaned toward Darrel. At that juncture a faint rattling was heard from the vault.

"What's that?" came in startled tones from Payton as every eye was turned on the vault door.

"It's Murgatroyd," said Darrel. "It's getting close in there and he must want to get out."

"How long has he been in there?" queried Glenn.

"Ever since the doctor and the marshal came."

"It's a wonder he ain't smothered to death!" exclaimed the marshal.

"He plays in too much luck for that," returned Darrel grimly. "In our struggle here in the room we knocked over that cabinet of minerals and that piece of galena fell on Murgatroyd's head. The safe happened to be open and I hauled him into it, closed the doors and turned off the combination. I heard you gentlemen coming, you know, and thought it might be some of Murgatroyd's friends. I didn't want the fellow to get away until the marshal had a chance at him. I may have been wrong in some of my surmises, but Mr. Lenyard has made it plain that Murgatroyd will have to share in the punishment even as he has shared in the taking off of poor Sturgis. Don't put those on me just yet, Merrick. I'm unarmed and you can sit close. I can't escape. Open the vault, Jim Glenn, you know the combination, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Dr. Payton," pursued Darrel as Glenn moved to the vault door and began rattling the knob, "you and Lenyard stand ready to catch Murgatroyd as he comes out. Have a care, for he is armed. He has probably heard nothing of our conversation out here. Brick and mortar and two thicknesses of steel would prevent that."

The marshal put his arm through Darrel's and Payton and Lenyard ranged themselves close to the vault door when Glenn swung it open. As the knob of the inner doors were turned, Murgatroyd came charging out, revolver in hand.

The First Hunting Dog.

It is, by the way, a curious thing that the setter should not have been used with the gun until long after the pointer's utility in this way was recognized. The sportsman of Edward III.'s time who caught pheasants and partridges in nets depended for assistance in finding his game on a dog of some sort which was taught to "sit" or "set," but not until the middle of the eighteenth century or thereabouts was the setter much used with the gun. The pointer, on the other hand, was imported from Spain somewhere about the beginning of the eighteenth century, at the time when progressive gunners were beginning to realize that they could shoot birds flying; and the Spanish pointer, or double-nosed pointer, as he is called by old writers, became the gun dog at once. Col. Thomas Thornton, of Thornton Royal, who devoted his life to field sports, was the man who remodeled the ancestor of the modern pointer. He considered the dog of his day too slow, and by crossing the Spanish pointer with the foxhound obtained greater speed and stamina, but at some loss of nose and docility.—E. D. Cumming, in Outing.

Lean as Pharaoh's Kine.

A good story of an old crofter who appeared before the commission to apply for a reduction of rent has just been told at a meeting in Glasgow. The number of cattle on the farm led Sheriff Brand to observe that surely the croft could not be in such a bad way as its owner would seek to show. "Och," replied the old fellow, "you should see the bit beasties." "What like are they?" queried the sheriff. "They're as lean, sir, as Pharaoh's kine." "How lean was that?" pawkily asked the sheriff, doubtless thinking that he had cornered the applicant. But had he? Not a bit. Like a flash came back the answer: "So lean, sir, that they could only be seen in a vision."—Yorkshire Post.

Court Etiquette Illustrated.

Ambassador Choate, at a dinner given by an American resident of London, illustrated the intricacies of court etiquette with a little story about King Edward.

"On the day of the birth of the present king," he said, "a certain marquis approached a lady-in-waiting anxiously.

"'Is it a boy or a girl?' he whispered.

"The lady-in-waiting, with a reproachful look, whispered back:

"'It's a prince.'"—N. Y. Tribune

stones or stumps to be swung onto it by the block and tackle. The upright pieces holding the tackle should be made of 2x6-inch hardwood pieces, all being securely screwed and bolted together. MISTAKES TO BE AVOIDED.

Cultivation of Drilled Corn Is Not Effective Unless the Work Is Done Right.

It is generally conceded that more corn can be grown on an acre in drills than in hills, but in weedy land the great trouble is to keep drilled corn clean and free from weeds. The great mistake in cultivating drilled corn usually is made at the first working, when shovels of medium size are used and small furrows left close to the rows. We find it no harder to keep drilled corn free from weeds than it is to keep hill corn clean, by using the smoothing harrow across the rows just as soon as the corn is up. In four or five days a second harrowing may be given and then the cultivators be set to work.

Avoid leaving any furrow close to the rows, and also be sure not to throw a ridge of earth up to the plants. Keep the land just as level as possible the first two or three workings and then as the plants begin to shade the ground they will do much to smother out weeds. The later cultivation of any corn is best given by a one-horse five shovel cultivator, instead of the two-horse riding implement, as with the former one can go very shallow and keep at any desired distance from the growing corn. We believe there are too many high-priced riding cultivators and not enough small one-horse implements used. The latter, diligently used, insure clean crops.—Farmers' Voice.

PLEASANT WORK FOR GIRLS.

Government Will Give Help Free to Those Who Want to Try Silk-Worm Culture.

The department of agriculture is investigating the possibilities of silkworm culture in the United States. To persons wishing to experiment, and who can furnish proper food for the worms, the department is distributing free of charge a small quantity of silkworm eggs, and also a manual of instructions. The proper food for silkworms consists of leaves from the different varieties of white mulberry tree and the Osage orange. The paper mulberry (with the fuzzy leaves) is not suitable, nor is the common red mulberry. As the season is now open applications for the eggs should be made at once, and must be accompanied by a statement as to the number and kind of mulberry trees or the amount of Osage orange which the applicant possesses, otherwise the eggs will not be sent. If the variety of the mulberry is not known to the applicant a sample of large leaves should be sent to the department. The department of agriculture buys the cocoons which the worms spin, paying for them (after they have been dried) 75 cents to one dollar a pound, according to their quality. The work will prove an interesting pastime for women and children who can devote to it odd minutes during the day.

Farmers as Business Men.

Successful farmers must be business men. There is no more reason why they should succeed with careless methods than should the manufacturer. It is just as important that the farmer know how much it costs him to raise a hog and to care for a horse or produce a bushel of corn or oats as it is for the wagon maker to know what it costs to manufacture a wagon. When this part of the business is looked after more carefully, there will be less foundation for complaints of unprofitable seasons, mortgaged farms and the unprofitableness of agriculture in general.—American Agriculturist.

The Gopher as a Plowman.

Darwin concluded that the earthworm in five years brings up soil enough to cover the ground one inch thick, and that, therefore, the result of its labor is of vast importance. I reckon that the pocket-gopher does this in five months. It does not do it in the same way or so effectively, because the earthworm actually digests the substance of its castings; but it is evident that the pocket-gopher's method answers the purpose of fully disintegrating and mixing the dead vegetation with the soil to produce a rich and fertile black loam.—Ernest Thompson, in Century.

CALIFORNIA DOG PAINTER.

Painted the Animals So Well That They Had to Have Chains on Them.

"Yes, sir. For instance," said a painter, relates the San Francisco Post, "there's a mammoth winter storm landscape I've just finished for Mr. Mudd, the bonanza king. It's called 'A Hailstorm in the Adirondacks,' and a visitor who sat down near it the other day caught a sore throat in less than 15 minutes. The illusion is so perfect, you understand. Why, I had to put in the finishing touches with my ulster and arctic overshoes on."

"Don't say?"

"Fact, sir; and then there's a little animal gem I did for Gov. Gierkins the other day—portrait of his Scotch terrier Snap. The morning it was done a cat got into the studio, and the minute it saw the picture it went through the window like a 10-inch shell."

"Did, eh?"

"Yes; and the oddest thing about it was that when I next looked at the canvas the dog's hair was standing up all along his back, like a porcupine. Now how do you account for that?"

"Dunno."

"It just beats me. When the governor examined the work he insisted in my painting in a post with the dog chained to it. Said he didn't know what might happen."

Elegant Train Service of the Nickel Plate Road.

The thorough development and maintenance of the up-to-date passenger service of the Nickel Plate Road leaves nothing to be desired by people who travel. Ladies traveling alone or accompanied by children will appreciate the clean and well-lighted coaches, made so by the corps of colored porters in uniform who attend the wants of both first and second-class passengers without extra charge. The dining car service of the Nickel Plate Road has become very popular with the patrons on the line and one of pride to the management. This service is conducted under the system of individual club meals. Carefully prepared menus are compiled into booklets, containing suggestions for breakfast, luncheon or supper that will not cost you more than thirty-five cents and on up to one dollar, which is the limit, hence the disbursement may wait for the appetite. Meals are also served "a la Carte." As no excess fare is charged on any train, it will be to your advantage to purchase your tickets via the Nickel Plate Route, where rates are lower than via any other line.

MADE A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

Government Official Was Bound to Get Right, But Again Got Wrong.

"Whenever an unknown person of distinguished appearance enters my office, I am reminded of the experience of Frank Vanderlip," said a senator's secretary, according to the Washington Star. "When Vanderlip was Secretary Gage's private secretary, before he got wel accquainted, he paid little attention to the people he did not know. One day a member of the cabinet called on Secretary Gage and was ignored for some time by Vanderlip, finally going into the private room unannounced. The cabinet officer complained to President McKinley, and the president mentioned it to Secretary Gage, who thereupon reprimanded Vanderlip.

"The next day, Vanderlip turning over a new leaf, one of the first persons to enter was a distinguished looking old fellow with a partriarchal beard. Vanderlip received him with great consideration, handed out a chair, which the old fellow took with gravity and some wonderment. Seating himself opposite, Vanderlip asked, with a most engaging smile, 'What can I do for you, sir?'

"'Oh, nothing,' replied the visitor. 'I just came to wind the clocks.'"

TURN OVER TIME

When Nature Hints About Food.

When there's no relish to any food and all that one eats doesn't seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Meal times were our busiest and eating too much and too quickly of food such as is commonly served in hotels and restaurants, these together with the sedentary habits were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seemed to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a fair trial of Grape-Nuts and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong and with satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up the use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health and brain power.

"American people undoubtedly eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, thus hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is predigested and concentrated in nourishment." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE WONDERS OF THE WORLD AT ST. LOUIS

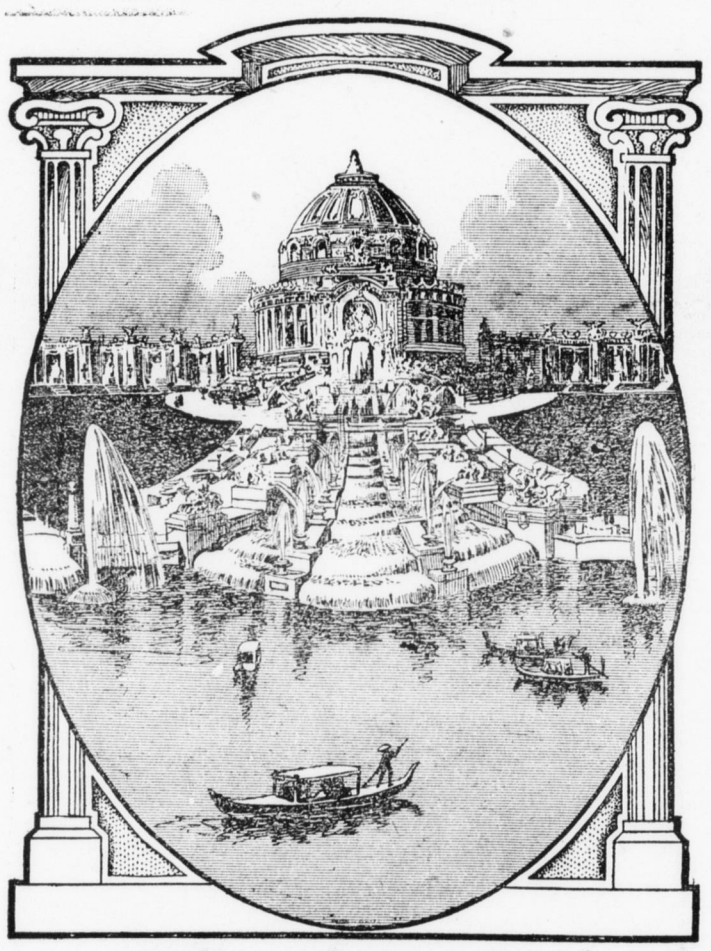
They Are to Be Found in the Great Palaces and Along "The Pike."

St. Louis.—Early visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition have found at St. Louis an exposition so nearly complete that they have in no way missed the few minor details that were unfinished on the opening day, and which have since been completed. In fact in an exposition of such proportions as this it would be impossible to discover a thousand little details that might lack completion.

Weather conditions were against the exposition management for a few days preceding the opening. Now everything is favorable, and the great fair is entirely complete, a completeness, we must repeat, that is so enormous that it is all but impossible to comprehend what it has meant to the builders. The last vestige of scaffolding that for a few days surrounded some of the less important buildings has been torn away; the last wagon load of refuse hauled from the grounds; every flower and shrub the landscape gardeners included in their scheme of decoration growing under the benign influence of a spring sun, and the exposition stands forth a completed giant, beautiful in conception, wonderful in execution, stupendous in size, by far the masterpiece of the world's expositions.

Stupendous size does not half express it. This world's fair has many surprises for the visitor, but its immense size is the greatest astonisher of all. Amazement at the extent of the fair is heard from every visitor.

It has been interesting to watch the visitors these first days of the fair. Interesting to see what would appeal to then strongest, but after one has studied the mass of humanity in their quest for the wonders it is hard to select any one feature that could be designated as a general favorite with all. Of course all visitors are enthusiastic over the general picture, the grand en semble, which has been created, and for the first hour or more of their stay inside the grounds but few get further than the point from which they catch their first view of this grand picture.



FESTIVAL HALL AND THE CASCADES.

"It almost takes my breath away," exclaimed one woman near whom I was standing as she caught her first glimpse of the beauty of the cascades and the magnificence of the grand exposition palaces. Such is the general verdict. For beauty, for magnificence, for extent, St. Louis has beat the world.

There is another feature, or rather collection of features, which seemingly appeals to every visitor, and with good reason, and that is "The Pike." The fair management do not wish to appeal to the public with a side-show. They built an exposition which should stand forth to the world on its merits as an educator, as a monument to the world's progress, but realizing that an amusement feature was necessary they set to work to provide the biggest and best in this line that has ever been known. That they have succeeded in this is evident to every visitor who travels "The Pike." Nor is this great amusement feature lacking in educational interest. Here one may study the architectural fancies of the world; here he may study the nations of the world, their methods of life, their surroundings, their customs. He sees realistic pictures of the Esquimaux in their snow and ice bound homes in one minute, and the next is transported to the jungles of tropical Africa. "The Pike" is not an aggregation of fat women and the skeleton men, in no sense a circus side-show, but a realistic picture of the world upon which five millions of dollars has been spent.

Six thousand performers from foreign countries, and busy artisans from every remote corner of earth are engaged to reproduce the life of 25 different peoples. Fifteen hundred animals are required to lend reality to the varied scenes. Two shows in the list of 40 represent an outlay of $1,400,000. Twenty of them cost not less than $100,000 apiece, and hardly an attraction less than $50,000.

Some idea of what there is to be seen of Pike features may be had from a list of the educational amusement features which this section of the fair contains:

Alaska and Esquimaux Village; Ancient Rome and Hawaiian Volcano; Battle Abbey; Bohemia; Crystal Palace; Cliff Dwellers; Chinese Village; Colorado Gold Mine; Creation; Coal Breaker; Cairo; Constantinople; Fire-Fighting Exhibition; Glass Weaving, Spinning; German Tyrolean Alps; Golden Chariot; Grant's Log Cabin; Galveston Flood; Haunted Castle; Hereafter; Hunting in the Ozarks; Infant Incubators; Indian Congress and Wild West; Irish Village; Japanese Village; Jerusalem; Jim Key (Educated Horse); Lincoln's Log Cabin; Moorish Palace; Model Playground; Miniature Railway; Magic Whirlpool; Morocco; Mysterious Asia; Naval Exhibition; Old Plantation; Old St. Louis, Mo.; Old Cahokia Court House; Old Virginia Homestead; Observation Wheel; Palais Du Costume; Pottery; Weller; Paris and France; Scenic Railway; South African Boer Exhibits; Streets of Seville; Statisticum; Submarine Diving; New York to the North Pole; Trained and Wild Animals; Under and Over the Sea; Upper Mississippi Views; Water Chutes; Wireless Telegraphy.

What runs in all; what supplies the power that makes the countless wheels go round? The majority of visitors are intensely interested in the mechanical motive force of this greatest of expositions, and well they may be. One of the most striking features is the power plant. Never before at an exposition has there been even half as much power developed as supplied from the various prime movers in the Palace of Machinery. In a large boiler house standing west of the Machinery building, filled with the latest and best productions of skilled boiler manufactures, steam is generated to supply 30,000 horse-power to the various engines in the Machinery building. In addition to this about 10,000 horse-power is received by electric cable from power stations in the city of St. Louis. But the greatest interest is in the engines themselves rather than in the large capacity of the exhibit, for among them is a giant turbine or rotary engine developing 8,000 horse-power, besides others of a similar type of smaller capacity. This is the first display of turbine engines at a large exposition, as its development is a very recent achievement of mechanical engineering and invention.

At the Chicago Exposition the largest gas engine developed only ten horse-power; the visitor to St. Louis may see a gas engine with the capacity of 300 times larger than the Chicago engine. The 3,000 horse-power gas engine is the largest engine of its character ever built. Many other gas engines of various types developing from 1,000 to 1,750 horse-power complete this feature of the exhibit, and there are many of the more familiar reciprocating engines of the latest pattern and highest efficiency.

Of the total number of prime movers in the Palace of Machinery about one-half are comprized in what is known as the Exposition power plant, the other half being exhibitors' engines. Nearly all these engines are connected with electrical generators and the power is transmitted by cable throughout the grounds to the electric railways, the machinery in operation in the exposition buildings, the pumps supplying water to the cascades and fountains, the refrigerating plant and for other purposes. The total horse-power used at Chicago did not exceed 12,000 and at the Pan-American not over 8,000, in comparison with the 40,000 to 50,000 here.

Electricity had only five and one-half acres at Chicago, while at St. Louis nine acres are given to the same department, besides a large display of electrical generators in the Palace of Machinery.

No one should be deterred from visiting the world's fair because of the fear that living expenses in St. Louis are too high. If anyone has this notion it is high time that it be dispelled. There is absolutely no doubt of the fact that one can find excellent living accommodations in St. Louis now at rates not exceeding the charges this same month in New York, Chicago or any other great American city.

No one need pay more than one dollar a day for a good room. That is an average rate, though many accommodations of excellent character may be had for less. There are many unrented rooms at five dollars a week, advertised every day in the newspapers. Hundreds of restaurants serve meals or give short order service at the same rates that prevailed before the exposition opened.

It is suggested that the stranger in St. Louis, who wishes to find reasonable boarding-house rates, make inquiry at a grocery store or meat market in the vicinity where he desires to stop. The grocers and butchers know nearly all the boarding houses in their neighborhoods, and they are quite willing to oblige the stranger by directing him to a place to suit his purse and his tastes. The "want" columns of the daily newspapers also contain columns of small advertisements for boarders or lodgers.

WOMEN "BUCK THE TIGER."

How the Dealers in a Montana Gambling Resort Get the Working Girl's Wages.

In Butte, Mont., there is a gambling house where the patronage of ladies is the special feature of the management, and where all kinds of women play the good old game of faro, perfectly at home and without fear of interruption. The entrance is from an alley near Broadway, and the house is luxuriously furnished. Carpets are laid on the floors, softened lights shine over the players, courteous attendants deal and shuffle the cards and pay bets or take winnings without the slightest suggestion of the incongruity of the situation, says the Denver Republican.

Here many fashionably gowned women of Butte's elite come in parties or in pairs with escorts, to quietly venture silver or goldpieces coined from copper by their husbands, who busy themselves in Butte's continuous political war.

Women of the business world keep track of the game, and both dealer and player usually maintain a rigid silence. Money is passed out for chips with the simple word, "five" or "ten," and conversation is economized to a minimum.

And there are schemes to inveigle the unsuspecting that only the initiated understand. Many women of the middle classes are among the most regular patrons of the place. A waiter girl was recently observed playing her week's wages with phenomenal luck. With $15 she had won $60 and had cashed in her chips with charming coolness prepared to go home "winner." The dealer paid her without comment. He counted out the money—two twenty-dollar bills, one ten, one five, four dollars in silver, two half-dollars. She picked up the money, put the bills in her purse and laid a half-dollar on the ace. It lost. She laid down a dollar. It won. Another few moments and she had lost the silver. Reluctantly she drew out a five-dollar note and began to play again. In a few deals she was playing heavily again. In half an hour she was broke. It was a simple trick which has won the bank many millions of dollars after the player cashed in—the manner of payment. One is reluctant to break a bill, but silver is convenient to lay down on a card, and most gamblers will do it. Before they know it they are again drawn in to the game. They sometimes win, it is true, for the games are on the square, but one cannot win always, and the chance on a second round is in favor of the "tiger."

Perils of "Self-Doctoring."

Large numbers of people in prosperous circumstances die as sexagenarians from maladies which are evidences of degeneration and of premature senility, while many who pass this period go on to enter upon an eighth or ninth decade of life. Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C.S.A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, MRS. Woman's Ills

How rare a thing to find a woman who is perfectly healthy. Fully seventy per cent. of the sex suffers from ailments which often render life a burden. These afflictions cause nervousness, irritability, melancholia, hysteria, etc. They entirely unfit a woman for life's work and deprive her of most of its joys.

AUNT DINAH'S OLD VIRGINIA

It has a soothing and quieting effect on the nerves and invariably induces sound, refreshing sleep. A cupful at bed-time is all that is necessary to make a woman well and keep her well.

Mayesville, S. C., Dec. 8, 1902.

A Continual Strain.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and dispondency. They cannot, as a rule, get ride of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vim and spirit to one's whole being, and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25c; regular size, 75. At all druggists.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely, bones are spliced, pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on the same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Jno. E. Smith, Sterling Run.

A man who refuses to pay his debts when he can is a thief at heart.

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.-50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Conchella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy that this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails sold by L. Taggart.

An Old Hunter's Advice.

Here is the advice an old hunter gives to those who may come in unexpected contact with bad animals:

"If you are cornered by a snake stand motionless and he will never bite.

"If a vicious dog attacks you show him a knife or some similar instrument, and he will keep out of reach. A dog can never learn the deadliness of a revolver or a gun, but unless he has the rabies he knows how to respect a knife.

"If a swarm of wild bees attacks you stand motionless and let out all your breath. Then only a few of the swarm will sting."

This advice should be reversed at sea. A man who is swimming in shark infested waters is safe as long as he kicks about and makes a great deal of noise. The shark is too timid to approach anything that looks as if it meant to fight.

"What would you do in case you were cornered by a cinnamon bear?" some one asked the old hunter.

"Say my prayers," he answered laconically.

They All Saw It Move.

Mrs. Burton, with her husband, Sir Richard Burton, the famous traveler, and two ladies, had driven out of Triest to a village dance and were sitting in the carriage listening to the band. In telling of it she said:

Suddenly, at the top of a roof, I caught sight of a rat, which appeared to me to be spellbound by the music.

"Look!" I said. "Don't move, but watch that rat fascinated by the music."

So we all sat and watched it and thought it most interesting that rats should be susceptible to music like lizards and snakes.

We all saw it move. We all saw its head turn and its tail move, and we kept still, not to frighten it away. The next day, feeling so much interested in the affair, we sent to inquire about it. The rat, it turned out, was made of painted tin and fixed to the top of the house. So much for imagination.

A Rigid Sabbatarian.

A Canadian university man is enlivening his home circle with the following story: He was touring in Scotland last summer. One Sunday morning he put his little hammer in his pocket (he is an amateur geologist) and, strolling out upon the hills, began to chip off such specimens of rock as interested him. A native passing by looked on with a frown. "Sir," he said, "do ye ken yer breakin' more than stones there?" "Breakin' the Sabbath, eh?" said the young Canadian, with a laugh, and, to appease the Scot, he put away the hammer and walked a little way with him. A turn of the road revealed the ruins of a castle. "What castle is that?" said the stranger. "It's noo the day," was the severe reply, "to be speirin' sic things."—London Outlook.

A Tree That Grows Dishes.

There is a tree in the West Indies that the natives say "grows dishes!" It looks like an apple tree. They call it the calabash. It bears very queer leaves and large white blossoms that grow right from the trunk and larger branches. After the flower comes the fruit, just as our apples or peaches do. But this fruit is in the shape of a gourd, only stronger and much larger, sometimes a foot in diameter. Now, see what a use the people of that country make of this fruit. The shell is so hard that all sorts of big and little dishes and drinking cups can be carved out of it. Even pots and kettles are made and used over the fire, but of course they cannot last as long as our iron ones.

Fetched 'Em.

"Hello, Miggles! How are you getting along with that suit of yours against the railroad on account of personal injuries?"

"I brought 'em to time, old man. I brought 'em to time!"

"What! Did you get the $50,000 you sued for?"

"No; we sort o'—er—compromised on the amount. They offered me $250 cash, and I took 'em up so blamed quick it made their heads swim. I got it, too, by George!"—Chicago Tribune.

What It Is That Wins.

A country woman remarked to her neighbor during a conversation on their return from market, "How is it, Mary, that you have been married four times, and I've never been married at all, and I'm much handsomer than you?"

"Aye, to be sure," returned Mary, "but it ain't handsomeness that does it, Sarah. It's the 'come hither' in your eye."

Bird Migration.

After years of study devoted to the topic Professor Alfred Newton of Cambridge stated that without doubt bird migration is the greatest mystery in the entire animal kingdom, "a mystery," he added, "that can be no more explained by the modern man of science than by the simple minded savage of antiquity."

Not Just What She Meant.

A little community of colored people in Alabama had raised the money to build a new church, and the dedication was to take place the next day. "Where are you going 'omorrow?" the school teacher asked one young girl. Smiling radiantly, she answered, "I'ze going to the degradation of our church!"

His Thought.

"I'm going to tell him what I think of him," said the angry man. "What do you think of it?"

"I think," was the reply, "that he must be a smaller man than you are or else you think pretty well of him."—Chicago Post.

"I was well; I would be better; here I lie," is the epitaph on a tombstone in England.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by L. Taggart, Druggist. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

It costs more to satisfy a vise than to feed a family.

World's Fair.

June 9, 16, 23, and 30 are the next dates for the great Pennsylvania Railroad coach excursions to the World's Fair at St. Louis. A special train of standard day coaches will be run on the following schedule, and excursion tickets, good going only on special train, will be sold from the stations named at rates quoted:

Bradford, Pa., $15.50; Corry, Pa., $14.10; Driftwood, Pa., $15.70; Lock Haven, Pa., $15.95; Olean, N. Y., $15.-50; Warren, Pa., $14.50; Williamsport, Pa., $17.00; York, Pa., $17.00.

Proportionate rates from other points.

Returning, tickets will be good in coaches on regular trains leaving St. Louis (Union Station) on day of validation, within ten days, including date of excursion.
